

Nursing practice is a clinical discipline, during the study of which the formation of moral and ethical foundations for further professional behavior takes place. The discipline "Nursing Practice" involves the study of hygienic, preventive and curative measures, which are within the competence of paramedics and are used to create a comfortable environment for the patient in a medical institution, promote the speedy recovery of the patient.

According to the sample curriculum, practice of patient care is provided in July after the end of the VI semester.

Assimilation of the material is based on consistent acquaintance with the peculiarities of the implementation of the specified scope of actions in the work of the therapeutic department of the hospital.

The organization of the educational process is carried out according to the requirements of the European credit transfer system.

Students work 7 hours a day for 4 working days, in their free time they work independently. The department should have a schedule of students. The direct supervisor of student practice is nurses.

Before leaving for the internship, the student must receive:

- instruction of the head of practice from the department;
- program and practice diary;
- referral to practice.

Upon arrival at the health care institution (HCI), the student must:

- submit a diary from the base to the head;
- undergo safety training;
- clarify the internship plan.

During the internship, the student is obliged to strictly follow the rules of the internal regulations of the HCI.