

RESEARCH

Main research interests of the department include:

The influence of the physical load on the biochemical processes in healthy adults and patients with ischemic heart disease and arterial hypertension;

The investigation of the metabolic changes in patients with nonalcoholic steatohepatitis;

The evaluation of the functional metabolic reserve by the study of heart rate variability.